A Pleasant Land to Live in. Free Fights in Kentucky.

From Descon Richard Smith's Cincin

We found Brenchit county in a most terrible state of anarchy. Politics has nothing to do with it; it is a personal feud between the parties engaged, originating from some of the results of the war of the rebelliou, so I am informed. The parties engaged are represent-ed to me as having been guerrillas and disagreed on the wind up of the war about the division of their apoils. Since that time a bitter feeling has existed, and has grad-nally grown stronger, and at the present time both paries are in open war, one against the other. Many of each side have since the commencement been either killed

On Thursday, the 16th inst., in the town of Jackson, county scat Bienchit county, Jerry Little and Curtis Jett, two of the opposing parties, commenced an affray in which Jett was killed and Jerry Little seriously but not mortally wounded, although having received nine buck-shot in his body. The friends of each then commensed, and others became embroiled in the difficulty, when Hiram Jett, the brother of the dead man, reselved a wound in the fleshy part of his thigh. That ended the affray for the time, but the friends In the matter of the petition of of the parties at once commenced arming themselves and by night there were at least fifty armed men in town, eager for the fray. Parties are seen skulking through the woods and cornfields with their guns loaded and looking after the nemy. Up to yesterday morning nothing more had occurred to mar the peace between these parties, but hostilities were expected to break out during the day.

On Saturday last a difficulty took place between Wm. Smith, Jack Hargiss, and Dan Flinchan, In which Smith was shot and mortally wounded by Jack Hargiss. Hargies then received a shot from Flinchen. His wounds are not serious. All at Jackson.

At Crocketeville, same .county, on Saturday, the 18th inst., an affray occurred between Hiram an and son and two men by the name of Moseles and a man by the name of Riley, in which shots terrible state of affairs.

Last month Judge Randall, Circuit Judge for this Circuit, came ing a court. The Grand Jury had been summoned to convene, and had come prepared to do their duty (for there are some good men here). Just before court was opened, some twenty or twenty-five men marched to the Court House and stacked their arms before the Judge's stand. This was too much. The Judge concluded he could not hold court under such streumstances and adjourned it. The Grand Jury refused to find indictments for fear of being mob-

Good people express the wish that the military may be sent to rided that said repairs as proposed in petition of Samuel Brown be for greatly. They say that their only salvation is in the military, mob law reigns supreme. There are no civil officers here at In the matter of additional assessall. The county is without a sher iff, and has not elected one for the cases years. The reason of this is that no good man will have it, for he can get but very little assistance in enforcing the laws. The election campaign for county and circuit officers in Kentucky is very bot, hotter than the weather. All of the candidates in this part of Kentucky expect to gain their election by dispensing freely the white whisky manufactured here in the mountains (and it is villainous stuff): and the consequence is that at every gathering there is more or less fighting, and in most instances one or two manufactures that instances one or two men are shot or stabbed.

Candidates, whiskey' murder d turmoil are the order of the
